Aortic arch hybrid therapy is a new technique developed to decrease postoperative morbidity and mortality for patients undergoing open heart surgery. This strategy comprises bilateral aortic arch manipulation associated with selective use of either conventional hypothermic cardiopulmonary bypass or cardiopulmonary bypass with mild hypothermia. In this review, we describe the technique of hybrid therapy and its benefits compared with conventional cardiopulmonary bypass.Is Labour in for a rough ride if Jeremy Corbyn is elected leader? According to Ukip's Peter Whittle, yes. But he's also got some very interesting predictions for the next 18 months. "A Corbyn government would be destroyed within weeks," Whittle told The Independent. "I have no reason to believe the transition of power will go more smoothly than it has gone at the moment. "Corbyn has said he will privatise the NHS - either he will, or someone will see the mandate they got from the people and have the courage to do it. You can be certain that a Labour government is the only way back. The verdict has been handed down on Blairism and it's a bit too late for the cliquish 'Blairites' to pretend they're fighting for the poor or the poor against the rich. "On the borders and security they will cut them. I don't think my views are even radical. I'd be happy for the Tories to get back in charge - especially if they were willing to concede the importance of free trade to the UK. It was the biggest mistake they've ever made - it will come back to haunt them." Whittle was trumpeting Ukip's policy this morning but he's also been talking about this new party. He started as a Conservative and became a member in 2004. At the 2008 European election he worked for the anti-EU UK Independence Party. He told The Independent there are "practically no similarities" between Ukip and the original UK Independence Party. "It will
